

FOOD POOR, QUARTERS BAD, IMPERATOR CREW APPEALS TO CAPTAIN

With all the marvels that the Imperator boasts the great Hamburg-American liner and her managers do not meet the views of her crew; not by a far sight.

More than 1,000 of them held a mass meeting last night and decided that the palatial liner is anything but a palace to them. In Imperial Hall, Hoboken, they passed a resolution calling on the officials of the line to relieve conditions which the crew say no human being should be called on to endure.

According to the protest, the quarters of the crew are overcrowded and unsanitary. They say men often have to stand in line for an hour before they can get to one of the sinks for a wash; that there are at least forty men in some quarters where lockers are provided for only four.

Watts are worked with one hour rest, but the stewards, pantry cooks, admirals and firemen say they have no place to rest when the time comes. And then there is the matter of food. Sometimes, it is asserted, the fare is good to eat, while the accommodations in the mess are poor. While the ship is in port, the seamen say, they are asked to work sixteen hours a day. They want a nine-hour limit.

The chief engineer is condemned in the resolutions which will be handed to Capt. Rueser this morning, and a request for generally humane treatment of the crew is made in the petition. The Imperator sails for Hamburg tomorrow morning.

The Most Decisive Bargains Seen in Many a Month Are Found on Every Floor at GIMBELS in this Stirring Tariff Adjustment Sale

"Why do you do it?"—asked one of the editors of a big trade publication. He saw our big announcement and realized better than anyone else what astonishing reductions we were making on fine, perfect, staple goods. We told him there was just one reason—as printed in the newspapers—WE WANT TO CLEAR OUR GREAT STOCK to be ready for the new conditions. Gimbel stocks are far vaster than those of the usual store—more complete, more fully assorted, hence the much greater task of distribution.

So we have made price-reductions such as are rarely known—PRICES MUCH LOWER, in many cases, THAN WILL BE FOUND WHEN THE NEW TARIFF IS IN FORCE.

All Splendid, Desirable Goods, Mostly HALF PRICE

There is no better shopping place anywhere than the roomy, comfortable, cool, perfectly ventilated Gimbel Store. Come EARLY. Almost all of the offerings announced on Sunday will be here tomorrow. Only these few can get special mention:
